

CLAIMANT'S SKELETON ARGUMENT ON QUANTUM

1. Expectation profits. The claimant seeks the profits it would have earned had the contract been performed. The claimant relies on Anglia Television Ltd v Reed [1972] 1 QB 60 as authority that a claimant may recover its full expectation profits, including the future profits lost on the abandoned production.
2. Damages at large. The claimant further seeks an enhanced award reflecting the defendant's conduct, relying on Rookes v Barnard [1964] AC 1129 as the general authority for compensatory damages at large in contract.
3. Remoteness. The recoverable heads are in any event limited by the contemplation test in Hadley v Baxendale (1854) 9 Ex 341.
